“The FSASE has worked diligently to create an educational program for election administrators and this national recognition is evidence that our FCEP Program in Florida is leading the way towards better elections. I am sure other states are taking notice and will hopefully implement similar innovative and effective programs for elections officials across the US.” - Kaiti Lenhart, Flagler County Supervisor of Elections

Tallahassee - The Florida State Association of Supervisors of Elections (FSASE), announced recognition of the 2015 Professional Practice Award from The Election Center for its Florida Certified Elections Professional (FCEP) program.

The FCEP program offers continuing education and certification programs for elections’ officials with topics including voter registration, media relations, and managing election workers. In recognition of the award, the FSASE will do a presentation at the Election Center Annual National Conference in August in Houston Texas.

“The FCEP program was developed by the FSASE back in 2007 and has steadily grown each year by providing professional training to Florida’s election administrators,” said Brian Corley, President of the FSASE.

“This recognition is affirmation of the hard work and dedication of Florida’s Supervisors and their staffs.”
